Students who successfully complete Anthropology #100 should be able to:

1) Discuss the contributions of anthropologists such as Margaret Mead, Jane Goodall, Donald Johanson and Julian Steward toward the development of anthropological field research.

2) Illustrate how Applied Anthropology can solve problems in forensics, language renewal and social/environmental impact studies.

3) Determine the importance of Anthropological Ethics when conducting participant observation studies in human populations.

4) Critically analyze the positive and negative aspects of globalization on traditional cultures around the world and determine if ethnocentrism is involved in the modernization process.